DISEASE MAKES WOMAN'S OWN HAND BEAT HER SENSELESS!

BLACK EYE, cuts and bruises on Myrtle Anderson's beat-up face were caused by her own hand.

'It developed a mind of its own & tried to strangle me,' says gal

By MATRICE DEXTER

Office worker Myrtle Anderson rushed herself to a hospital after her left hand went crazy and started punching, pinching and strangling her.

The 38-year-old woman was suffering from a rare condition known as "alien hand syndrome," a temporary brain disorder that affects several thousand Americans.

She had been having trouble with the hand for months but it had recently turned violent, she says in an article in a community health bulletin in Columbus, Ohio.

"I thought I was going crazy when that hand began acting up," said Mrs. Anderson, whose name has been changed to protect her privacy. "First it started getting in my way, undoing whatever my right hand did. Then it began interfering with my work and my household chores.

"Recently things got worse. My left hand began sneaking up on me and working me. It would wake me up at night. It was like it belonged to another person."

Mrs. Anderson said her symptoms began six months ago after a fall from her kitchen stool knocked her unconscious. When she awoke, her left hand felt weak and had a tendency to flutter and move independently.

Over the next several months the hand got wilder, grabbing things out of Mrs. Anderson's right hand and ordering work as fast as she got it done.

"I'd put a cigarette in my mouth with my right hand and look around for the lighter," the injured woman said. "While I was doing that, my left hand would remove the cigarette.

Things like that would happen all the time and it was getting worse, not better."

But it was only when physically that the bookkeeper went to doctors and by that time her case was very serious. Her hand was so out of control that it would wake her in the middle of the night with a tight grip on her throat, much like Peter Sellers' wayward hand in the 1964 cult flick Dr. Strangelove.

Myrtle's hand would slug her in the stomach or slap her young daughter for no reason. Once it punched her boss, nearly losing the woman her job.

"Thank God I went to see somebody," she says now. "Doctors told me my condition is rare, but there are others who have it, too. They say it is caused by damage to certain areas of the brain and that is usually stroke itself.

"In the last few weeks my symptoms have let up a little and I'm hopeful that soon I'll be all right again."

'Alien hand' bizarre but all too real

Dr. Peter Sellers knows them.

As many as several thousand Americans may suffer from a rare malign disorder called "alien hand syndrome." In which their left hands quite literally don't know what their right hands are doing.

In the worst cases, the hand may become aggressive, pinching, slapping or punching the patient — at least one recorded case

KID COURAGE

Armless boy swims 8 football fields

By JOE BERGER

Courageous schoolboy Stuart Myers plunged into bone-chilling water and swam 880 excruciating yards to raise money for the sick and homeless — even though the pitiful kid was born with no arms!

"Little Stuart may be only 9 years old, but he's one of the greatest people who ever lived," said admiring coach and teacher Alma Collins.

"Anybody else with a terrible handicap like his might sit around feeling sorry for themselves, but not Stuart.

"He doesn't have the time to fret over his troubles — not when he's so busy helping other people."

The remarkable Moorhe, England, boy has been a superstar student and artist for years, using his mouth to wield both pen and paintbrush.

But spunky Stu didn't take up swimming until a year ago — and his first dip in the pool was a terrifying one.

"The poor child was petrified because he had nothing to hang onto and no way to keep afloat," his coach recalled.

"But he's such a brave kid he forced himself to leap right in. And now he shoots through the water like a torpedo.

"Then, when he's ready to climb out, he pulls himself up onto the steps of the pool — using nothing but his chin."

And when the brave youngster learned a local club was holding a swim-off to raise money for charity, the fourth grader rushed into rigorous training.

"All he talked about was how he was going to make money for the poor people," Coach Collins said. "Then the day came and the heat in the pool went out and the water was ice-cold.

"I told Stuart it was going to hurt and he didn't have to go, but he went in and swam 14 lengths all by himself.

"Most kids could never swim that far in water that cold — even if they had arms to do it with."

FIN-TASTIC Stuart Myers gets set to dive into the pool, above. At left, the proud 9-year-old shows he's at home in the water.

1 out of 3 U.S. workers says he's close to burning out

One out of three American workers wants to quit his job because he can't stand the constant stress anymore.

And according to a national survey, just as many workers expect to burn out on their jobs in the very near future.

"Job-related stress has created a crisis that largely goes unrecognized by employers," said Scott Knowlton of Northwestern National Life Insurance Co., which conducted the study.

The survey of 600 workers also found that 72 percent experienced three or more workplace stress-related illnesses, including headaches, exhaustion, depression and ulcers.

Hubby beats rap for wife's murder after she testifies from beyond the grave!

'He shot me by accident'

In a mind-boggling court case, testimony from beyond the grave swayed a jury to set an accused murderer free!

Joao de Deus, 31, was acquitted of the shooting death of his wife Gleide on the strength of messages that a famed psychic says he received from the woman . . . after she died!

"We never had any fights between us," the spirit of Gleide wrote through medium Francisco Xavier.

"We were so happy . . . neither you nor I could ever know or explain how the revolver went off and how the bullet entered my neck."

And the prosecuting attorney in the case declared: "I have no doubt that the jury's vote was based on Xavier's messages."

Joao stood accused of murdering his wife of 10 months. The businessman — who often carries a revolver — testified he reached in the top of his wardrobe for his gun, which was in a plastic bag.

"My wife was seated on my bed. I was taking the revolver out of the bag when a shot was fired accidentally.

"My wife had been shot in the throat! After four days in the hospital, she died."

Joao nearly went mad with grief, he told reporters in Campo Grande, Brazil.

To ease his anguish, Joao went to see Xavier, 75, famed for going into a trance while spirits use his hand to write their messages from beyond the grave.

Joao recalled: "Xavier said he would be receiving messages from spirits that night, and that I should attend the session."

Xavier did not know Joao was accused of murder and he had no idea that Gleide had been shot to death. But that evening, Xavier received a message from Gleide which referred to her shooting — and affirmed it was an accident.

While hundreds of people watched, Xavier later received three more messages from the dead woman.

Parapsychol expert Elsie Dubugras, who lives in Brazil and is very familiar with the case, said: "The messages contain detailed references to other situations lived by the couple, and mention names and places which only the deceased could have known.

"They are written in the same handwriting style as Gleide's."

And when Joao showed the messages to his lawyers, they decided to present them at his murder trial as evidence on his behalf.

Attorney Nelson Trad said, "The messages totally backed up our client's testimony. We entered them as evidence and they were read in court. Gleide, the victim, even though deceased, was actually testifying in court on her husband's behalf."

FAMED PSYCHIC Francisco Xavier put himself into a trance and wrote a note from the slain woman.

Old happier times: Joao de Deus and his bride Gleide on their wedding day.

How to keep from bugging your boss

You can improve your job performance and win pay raises by avoiding the things that annoy bosses most, says an expert on management.

Norman Harbaugh surveyed 122 supervisors and learned the 10 most irritating habits of workers under them:

1. Procrastination. Bosses feel that procrastination on the job leads to missed deadlines," said Dr. Harbaugh.

2. Passing the buck. Bosses want employees to accept responsibility for their actions.

3. Not caring. Bosses feel employees don't perform well — doing a sloppy job or not completing assignments," said Dr. Harbaugh. "They felt they'd been conned."

4. Pretending to know what you're doing when you don't.

5. Lack of initiative.

6. Going over your supervisor's head. "Bosses don't like employees who ignore the traditional chain of command," said Dr. Harbaugh.

7. Gossiping. Spreading rumors can lead to mistrust and misapprehension in the workplace, and bosses don't like employees who do it.

8. Being incompetent. Workers must be competent in their jobs.

9. Being irresponsible. Bosses want employees to be responsible for their actions.

10. Being lazy. "When a worker is just plain lazy — misses deadlines, shows up late, etc. — the boss feels he's being taken advantage of and Feathers fly in snooty suburb!

Woman takes neighbors to court — to keep the chicken she loves!

SMOOCHING cheek to beak is just one of the pleasures of keeping a chicken says Candy Weichbrodt. Hubby Lee looks on approvingly. The couple fought a costly legal battle to keep their beloved bird.

Nosy neighbors cried fowl when Candy Weichbrodt moved into a spanky new housing development. But Candy and family roughed up thousands of bucks, took the cranks to court — and won the right to keep their cherished chicken Scooter!

By JOE BERGER

"I'd die before I let them take my Scooter away," vowed the clutter-crazy lady.

"That chicken is part of our family, just like my husband and son are part of the family. She eats with us and sleeps with us on our water bed — and when my husband Lee has a nice, cold beer, Scooter has a cold beer right along with him.

"We love her and it's easy to see she loves us, too."

Kindhearted Candy's woes began last year when she, Lee and son Paul, 18, moved into a high-falutin neighborhood in Pembroke Pines, Fla. — bringing Scooter, seven cats, three dogs, two love birds, a pair of parrots, a couple of rabbits and a friendly 4-foot lizard with them.

All was well till an old busybody spotted the happy-go-lucky hen pushing around the yard and turned her owners in for flying in the face of some blindheaded anti-chicken regulations.

"They kept sending us notices, and we tried to ignore them," Candy recalled.

"Then they threatened to fine us $250 a day till we got rid of Scooter, and we knew we had to take them to court."

But while the hellbent homewife was waiting to tell it to the judge, her beloved buddy was hauled off to Candy's mother's house hundreds of miles away.

"I cried my eyes out on the way home from Miami," she admitted.

"I was already missing her cute little clucking noises and the way she eyes around the corner to see me when I call her name.

"She's only got one wing, and sometimes she poops so fast she topples over on her side.

"So I pick her up and give her a big kiss and a hug, and then everything's okay again."

When turned Candy finally had her day in court, her job was to prove that her adorable Rhode Island Red was a pet — not some oddball backyard fowl.

"I showed them pictures of my Scooter eating at our dinner table and riding around in our car and lying around on our water bed," she recalled.

"I explained to them that most people don't let their farm animals do things like that."

And jurors were so touched by her tale of love, they ruled that spoiled Scooter could return to the leafy-tidy housing development for all time.

"For the car ride home, she got on my lap and put her head on my chest as if to say, 'I'm coming home!'" said ecstatic Candy. "During the six-hour drive, she never moved. She just sat with her head on my chest and her mouth open. She knew she was headed home at last."

Incest victim speaks out after 15 years of abuse

By SUSAN ANISON
Staff writer

A courageous young incest victim endured public embarrassment in court when she charged her father with sex abuse — but that was nothing compared to what her own family did to her.

The 20-year-old Canadian woman was cursed at, insulted and physically threatened by her three brothers, three sisters and mother after the testified that her dad had abused her from the age of 10.

"The family never denied they knew the sex abuse was going on, but they blamed her," said Rick Miller, who prosecuted the woman's 56-year-old father in New Westminster, British Columbia Supreme Court. "The abuse went on twice a week until she turned 21 and left home.

"When the accused charged and the defendant got five years the family took off after her. They told her they wished she was dead. They called her a slut."

. . . and her family calls her a SLUT!

According to Miller, the father began his abuse by simply fondling his unsuspecting daughter. Later, when she reached the age of 11, he used threats to force her to engage in sexual intercourse.

The young victim was so upset by the incest that she attempted to kill herself and mutilated herself by pulling out her hair. But the attacks went on through the years she lived at home. When she finally left her family she went to authorities in an attempt to deal with her past.

"The father, a farmer, said she was lying and the sexual abuse never happened," Miller said. "But the evidence substantiated it had and the judge believed the girl."

After the trial, the husband left his wife and kids went crazy, Miller said. One woman had to be restrained from attacking the abuse victim and a brother yelled, "You had you didn't kill yourself, you slut." Her teenage sisters threatened to hurt her later.

"I've seen families torn on various occasions before, but this family surprised me. It took a couple of Mounties and three police officers to protect her," said Miller.

ALIEN CORPSE FOUND!

MASSIVE SPACEMAN is shown alongside a normal adult human. The mummies were discovered by a French archaeological team working in Egypt and are believed to be more than 4,000 years old.

Archaeologists uncovered a group of mummies in an ancient Egyptian tomb — and discovered one of them is a giant humanoid that probably came from outer space!

The mummified creature has a wide, tongueless mouth, no ears and no nose, according to reports from the French archaeological team. It is more than 8 feet tall, a startling height for a time when adult humans measured just over five feet.

"It had been mummified more than 4,000 years ago and placed in a tomb surrounded by the bodies of its human caretakers," said Dr. Gaston de Villard, a world-renowned archaeologist from Paris. "Just like an Egyptian nobleman, it had been buried with a supply of artifacts, food and art objects.

"But in this case there were also strange artifacts we have never seen before. A polished, round metal disc with strange writings, a corroded metal suit with the remains of plastic hoses, and numerous rock tablets with drawings of the planets and stars and strange machines etched on them."

Dr. de Villard found the mummies in April 1991, after investigating reports of a hidden rock chamber near the quarry at Al Harrab, Egypt. He located the vault, enlarged a narrow opening and found a complete 12-foot square burial chamber inside the rock.

"The chamber had been created by an unknown people never used in ancient times," Dr. de Villard reported. "Inside the tomb, the rock was cut as smoothly as polished marble and accurately carved. It looks exactly like the laser-cut rock of modern times, only the surface appears to have been melted.

"A lead-like substance flecked with gold decorates the chamber. We have not yet analyzed this remarkable substance. It's not something scientists have ever seen."

Dr. de Villard and two members of his archaeological team have concluded that the giant mummy is an alien life-form that died and was buried among earthlings. Rock etchings of the planets and stars include pictures of strange airborne craft, the scientists say, indicating that flight was known at that time.

"We have X-rayed the alien mummy, but we believe we must go much farther to establish the exact nature of this creature," the archaeologist said.

"We intend to unwrap it fully, study its skin and physical structure and make a report on our findings. If that is what we believe it is, this is an explosive find indeed."

A lesson from Bob Sidell. One of Hollywood's most revered authorities on professional skin care.

Beautiful Skin. . . an Over-Night Sensation!

Creating a beautiful complexion doesn't have to take a lot of time and it certainly doesn't have to cost a lot of money. Here's a quick lesson on how to have a beautiful complexion simply and at very little cost. It's the same technique that's used by many of Hollywood's most beautiful stars. And what works for them, will work just as easily for you. So, let's get started!

Before bedtime: Start with a hot (but not so hot that it hurts!) washcloth. Wring it gently and hold it over your face for about one minute. This will open your pores and lift dirt and oils to the surface. Next, using my professional formula, SilkSkin Cleanser, gently lather your face with an upward, circular motion.

Remember, your pores are open! Harsh scrubbing can damage your skin, so be kind and use a very light touch. That's all it takes with my special theatrical makeup cleanser. It removes deep dirt buildup—the most typical reason for "large" pores. Now, rinse, rinse, rinse with warm water. Pat dry.

Toning is extremely important, yet usually forgotten. Using a good toner will insure that every trace of cleanser is removed and will also re-close your pores, protecting them against airborne and topical bacteria.

My SilkSkin Toner is alcohol-free with a witch hazel base—the best pH balancer for your fragile complexion. Pour a small amount of SilkSkin Toner onto cotton and gently pat your face. Now you're ready for the finishing touch!

Final step: Here's where you give your skin back the essential, pure moisture that it craves. I created SilkSkin Moisturizing Emollient for this purpose. It contains no mineral oil and has a special formulation of 20 moisture enhancing ingredients.

Gently apply a small amount of SilkSkin Moisturizing Emollient to your face. Using upward, circular motions, give your complexion a gentle massage.

My SilkSkin Moisturizing Emollient is light enough to use under makeup, yet powerful enough to fight wrinkles and plump even the driest skin cells. Used before bedtime, it works while your skin is "at rest" to effectively counteract the signs of aging. The name, "SilkSkin," by the way, was chosen by one of my clients because it made her skin feel "like silk". Try it for yourself in the morning.

When you use my SilkSkin System, I promise you'll see wonderful results the very next morning. Continue using it and the constant improvement in your complexion will be spectacular. After all, would those elegant ladies of the silver screen use my SilkSkin System if it wasn't the best? Like I said, try it for yourself in the morning . . .

Worker tries to ELECTROCUTE his BOSS ... after bad evaluation

By JACK ALEXANDER

An angry electrician tried to electrocute his boss because he got a bad job evaluation.

Having used Richard Dale Langston wired a chain-link fence to a 120-volt classroom outlet at a school in Seattle, Wash., to shock his boss, Jeffrey Minnix.

"He knew it was his boss' job to open the fence gate every morning," said Deputy Prosecutor Mark Hammer.

Minnix arrived at work, parked his cycle and grabbed the fence, setting off a loud boom accompanied by a bright light.

"He was stunned but not injured," said Hammer. "The insulated ski gloves he wore may have saved his life."

Langston, 27, was put in jail on an attempted first-degree murder charge and later was allowed to plead guilty to a lesser charge of second-degree assault after spending six months behind bars.

As he stood before Judge Stephen Scott, Langston admitted that wiring the fence was a prank that could have seriously hurt his boss.

"It was a stupid idea to say the least," said Judge Scott.

When defense lawyer Peter Friedman suggested that being shocked by 120 volts was not enough juice to kill somebody unless water was involved, Judge Scott asked if he would be willing to place himself in the same situation.

Friedman replied, "Yes."

Judge Scott then sentenced Langston to six months in jail, but gave him credit for the six months he had already served.

He also placed Langston on a year's community supervision, ordered him to pay $810 to court costs and told him to stay away from Minnix, the school and school employees for 10 years.

"I think Langston realized he had done a dumb thing in a fit of anger," Hammer said.

"The bad evaluation was the straw that broke the camel's back. He is very lucky his boss wasn't badly injured or he might be in prison."

Want someone to notice you? . . . move to their left!

People will pay more attention to you if you're on their left side, say experts.

That's because the brain is more attuned to whatever is on the left side of a person's field of vision, explained Dr. William Vingiano.

Therefore, it's wise to place yourself, a message or whatever you want noticed on the individual's left side, added Dr. Vingiano, a top psychologist.

That's why pictures are often placed to the left of audiences, Dr. Vingiano explained.

"There are a myriad of everyday applications of this principle. For instance, if you're trying to get your boss to notice you when he's busy, try standing in his left visual field.

"Or if you're trying to get an individual to read a memo on his or her cluttered desk, try placing it on the left side."

Added Dr. Gary Emery, a psychology expert, "If you're trying to be noticed, stand to the left of a person — they might just start paying attention to you!"

The Amazing Diet DISCOVERY That SAVED My LIFE!

by S. Bowman

I never forget how embarrassing it was to be seen in public. Last summer I was so fat that children used to point at me and giggle when I walked outside.

But when my husband stopped buying me new clothes for me, I finally realized how awful I looked. That's when I decided that no matter what it took, I couldn't go on living and being fat.

The first diet I tried was all protein. For two weeks I ate nothing but chicken, fish and eggs. But to my surprise, I had actually gained ten pounds!

My next attempt at losing weight was by fasting. After two days, I was so hungry that I broke down and devoured an entire box of chocolates!

Four more months and no diets later I was 4 pounds heavier than when I started! I was becoming desperate and even thought about ending it all — for good.

Then out of nowhere, I made a discovery which not only saved my life, but also helped me lose 37 pounds in less than 3 months!

IT WORKS INCREDIBLY FAST!

My weight loss discovery is based upon a scientific computer program called Compufit. The Compufit program is custom designed around your individual eating habits. The program shows you the exact amounts of each food needed to lose weight in the fastest time humanly possible. The program works — rapidly — to help your body's own digestive system break down fat very quickly. Following this program, there are absolutely NO harmful side effects, NO sensations of hunger, NO strange concoctions to mix, and NO harmful tablets to swallow.

Furthermore, NO exercise is necessary, NO powder diets are involved, and there is NO need for willpower or strict discipline of any kind.

90-Day Unconditional Money-Back Guarantee

Following your personalized computer weight loss program, we guarantee you'll get thin naturally, without any strenuous dieting and exercise. If, by following this program, you don't lose as much weight as you want within 90 days, simply return the complete program materials for a full refund, no questions asked.

In fact, the incredible program enabled me to lose 37 pounds without even once feeling like I was on a diet. You lose weight while you eat the same exact foods you usually eat, only with a different balance of proteins, carbohydrates, and fats. The computer program takes into account your personal and unique ability to digest different foods. This is the reason why most other diet programs don't work — they ignore the individual dietary requirements that everyone has, but most people just don't know about.

With the Compufit program, your unique nutritional needs are determined by an incredible computer system. This system analyzes over 100 of your personal food preferences, to finds the exact combinations of foods to help you achieve your ideal weight. Then, all you have to do is follow the customized eating plan you'll receive and your excess weight will drop off like nothing know! Amazing, but true!

This is the perfect weight loss system for people who want to lose weight in a hurry.

The reason the Compufit program works so amazingly fast is that it enables your digestive system to work much more efficiently. That results in much greater weight loss than you can experience by "dieting," and a much safer and more permanent weight loss than you can achieve by taking so-called "diet" pills.

EASY TO FOLLOW

One of the best things about losing weight with this program is how easy it is. Even if you eat in restaurants every day, you can easily lose weight by following this amazing and completely personalized plan. In fact, many people eat more food than before and they still lose weight. It's true!

And, if you're like me, and you hate to do strenuous exercise, that's also no problem! You won't have to lift a finger to become thin again! Take my word for it — I have no vices. I have swollen, I hate jogging — in fact, I don't even like to walk more than 3 or 4 blocks at a time, and I lost 37 pounds without ever once going to a health club or fitness spa. You can too!

HAVE A BEAUTIFUL NEW BODY— STARTING TODAY!

SEX, MONEY! Pamela Curtis and Robin Smith are two highly successful people. The media claim their marriage counselor type behavior made it so. We could have told them that.

HYPNOTIZED FOR SEX

By Joe Studley

Furious Frank and Pamela Curtis hired a self-proclaimed sex therapist to help them save their shaky marriage. But instead of helping, they say, the guy hypnotized Pamela — and made mad, passionate love to her week after week!

The troubled couple has filed a whopping $20 million lawsuit against Paul Zalesin of West Bloomfield, N.J., charging that Zalesin's sleaze tactics wrecked their marriage.

"This man took advantage of Pamela Curtis in entirely disgusting, sexual ways," said lawyer Dennis Barbash. "He put her under a spell and then raped her, and he shouldn't be allowed to get away with that."

But Zalesin countersued, saying they were the ones who had been hard on pretty Pamela.

"It's extortion! It's total blackmail, that's what it is!" blustered debonair lawyer Sidney Silber. "It's a pack of lies and we're not giving them one dollar!

"They're all crazy and we don't want to get them mixed up in court. Mr. Zalesin feels very bad about the things said during the hypnotic sessions, but he was only trying to help a troubled couple."

Woman files $10,000,000 lawsuit against her marriage counselor!

Aside from their drop-dead looks, what do sex goddesses Marilyn Monroe, Ava Gardner, Rita Hayworth, Lana Turner and Elizabeth Taylor have in common? The oldest man ever to divorce

BEFORE: the divorcee Harry Bidwell and his wife Lucy raise their glasses in a toast.

"Romance is out for me now. Women are nothing but trouble. Falling in love was the biggest mistake I ever made," said Harry Bidwell, the oldest man in the world to get a divorce.

Harry had remained a bachelor until the ripe old age of 80 when he took the plunge and married 58-year-old Lucy.

He divorced her nine years later, after he turned 101.

"There's no way I would ever consider getting married again," Harry said. "I still like girls, but only as friends — nothing romantic."

Harry ruefully recalled his ill-fated marriage to Lucy.

"I lived 99 glorious years as a single man, but in a moment of madness I got married," he said.

"I never really came close to marriage in my younger days. Whenever I thought a girl was getting too close, an alarm bell would ring in my head and I'd run a mile.

"But I thought I was in love when I met Lucy. She loved doing housework and that suited me fine.

"At first, things were really good. I had never been so well looked after in my life. But that changed.

"After a few years, Lucy seemed to settle down on her own and let the housework pile up. And would she nag! Nagging was a new experience for me, and I didn't like it. I would just pull away as my ears and close my mind.

"With each and every nagging grumble I'd say to myself: 'God, what have I done?'

"Finally it all came to a head after my 101st birthday.

"We had another furious argument over the housework. It spoke me angry to hell that she hadn't bothered cleaning up again. I called her 'lazy.' The next thing I knew she was packing her bags.

"She slammed the door as she left and suddenly I felt at peace again.

"I'm a happy man now," he said from his home in Brighton, England. "I thank God every day for rescuing me from marriage. Nowadays I steer clear of romantic involvements. I still like girls — but I don't fancy suffering from another bout of insanity."

Troopers ticked off by ban on Rolex watches

State Highway cops in New Jersey are really ticked off — they can no longer wear a Rolex watch while on duty!

Seems a trooper broke his Rolex while making an arrest. The bill to repair it — footed by taxpayers — was $600. That was a bit much for officials who ordered the ban on expensive jewelry.

However, the issue isn't yet dead. The ban is being appealed by the State Troopers' National Association.

Eggheads look for germ to eat world's crummiest car!

JUNK HEAP — where East Germany's superweapon Trabant is made of polyester

By TOM LOFTIN

East Germany's Trabant automobile is such a threat to the environment that scientists are trying to find a microbe that will eat it!

The tiny, smoke-spewing car not only fouls the air with dangerous pollutants, it can't be recycled or scrapped because the body is made of a poisonous synthetic resin that releases cancer-causing dioxins into the soil if it is buried and into the air if it is burned.

And getting rid of the 2 million or so Trabants that were manufactured before the company went belly up is a top priority because the cars are so incredibly unreliable that frustrated motorists abandon them by the hundreds every day.

The owner's manual actually warns drivers and passengers "to get out and run" if the car bursts into flames — and that's when they're showroom new.

"The Trabant is a disgrace, a dangerous disgrace," declared Frank Meyer, founder of the New World environmental group in Frankfurt.

"When the cars are running they spew sulfur dioxide into the air and when they're not running you can't recycle them because they fool the environment and cause cancer.

"We've got to do something to get rid of them and that means we've got to find a microbe that will eat them."

Microbes are a type of germ, and scientists think that dangerous materials are nothing new. They're widely used to manage treatment plants and can even gobble up oil spills.

German scientists have already created and patented a microbe that will eat cellulose resins in the Trabant's body.

But they're still looking for one that will digest the dangerous phenol-formaldehyde resins that are also found in the car's components.

Experts say it will be at least three years before they find or develop such a microbe. Until that time comes all they can do is dump broken-down Trabants in landfills and junkyards, severely contaminating the environment.

"The Trabant was born and bred in East Germany prior to the reunification of our country and was supposed to be a triumph of socialism," said Meyer.

"The sad fact is they're nothing more than a monument to socialist stupidity."

WORKER GETS $3,000 — FOR BEING STINKY!

By JACK ALEXANDER

An assembly line worker at an auto plant has been awarded $3,000 — because he smells like a dead fish.

The underdeodorized 31-year-old bachelor claimed he suffered stress on the job after his foreman told him his body odor was obnoxious or nonexistent.

"He was so upset by what the foreman said that he suffered an acute anxiety reaction and had to take a leave of absence from his job after 20 years," said Dave Thompson of the Canadian Auto Workers Union.

The stinking bachelor later told a Workers Compensation Board in Oshawa, Ontario, Canada, that he lost his appetite, couldn't sleep and suffered serious sexual problems.

The board listened to his bizarre tale and awarded him $3,000. "He eventually returned to work under the same foreman and there have been no problems so far," said Thompson. "I don't know if they've had any more discussions about the man's personal hygiene."

I'm madder than Roseanne Barr with an empty pork chop platter that my favorite [illegible] star Madonna [illegible] getting all this [illegible] flashing a little bare skin all over creation.

Hey, at least Madonna is American-made and not some sleazy Brit like those stupid Beatles that I hated so much.

Let's face it. Madonna is the best girl singer since Patti Page did my all-time favorite Tennessee Waltz, way back in the summer of '50.

But what makes me an pig-hitting mad is that every time Madonna does a little shimmy and shake on the tube, all the old fuddy-duddies get so bent out of shape they have to take a couple of swigs out of the old Clairol bottle.

I've been accused of a lot of things, folks, but being an old stick-in-the-mud isn't one of 'em, by golly!

I've been a hep cat ever since I went to a dandy Glen Frankman concert in Cleveland.

Not only that, I've still got an original 45 of Ray Markette belting out Abdi the Arab back in '56 and Woolly Bully by Sam the Sham and the Pharaohs.

And Gary Lewis and the Playboys weren't half bad either, by God. Roger Miller's Dang Me was tops, too — and I could go on and on.

But nowadays I have to watch Madonna strut her stuff. And I like her singing, too, by gum. The gal's got talent with a capital T.

And if all you old maid blue hairs out there have a problem with Madonna, cut off your hearing aids.

Takes trois hie only one thing to say. "Let's boogie."

Colors can turn your mate ON or OFF

"Turning on" your mate colors you wear can have a color response, and there is little doubt that your choice of colors can affect the moods of your mate, said Dr. Fred Koenig, noted psychology expert.

Dr. Kay Olson, psychologist and author, agreed. "If you choose the wrong colors, you could be turning somebody off. But the right colors can add positively to the rapport between two people," she said.

Here's what the two experts had to say about the following colors:

RED — It's the most primal color, savage and wild. It tends to stimulate introverted people, who associate it with life, vigor and strength.

PINK — It's softer than red and is a better color for stimulating an extroverted person, who tends to get overly aggressive when he sees red.

YELLOW — It's a joyful, wholesome color that tends to appeal to intellectual types, or to the scrupulously honest, straightforward person.

ORANGE — This combination of red and yellow appeals to both the sensitive intellectual and the aggressive extrovert. It has such wide appeal, you can hardly go wrong wearing it.

BLACK — It appeals to people who like the mystique and challenge of the unknown. It evokes a sense of power or regret, but would tend to bore off the timid.

BLUE — It's a very romantic color, evoking images of tropical islands or blue lagoons. And unlike red, it's a subtle "turn on" color that appeals to the serenity type.

TURQUOISE — Forget it. This combination of blue and green turns off most people. It is definitely not a sexy color.

WHITE — Combined with black, it makes for a dramatic combination, evoking images of virginal purity (white) with challenge and intrigue (black).

GREEN — Like yellow, it's a wholesome color that appeals to "solid citizen" types and the very mature. It attracts people who tend to overlook a person's appearance and concentrate on personality.

Summing up, Dr. Koenig said: "Not enough people give proper thought to what sort of colors actually their mates — whether present or prospective.

"People tend to take colors for granted, or choose colors which, unconsciously, either annoy or turn off their mates. You should choose colors consciously knowing the reactions you are going to get. What mood do you want? What is it you are trying to say? These are the questions you should reflect upon when dressing."

43-year-old widow teaches men the meaning of GUTS!

First person over Niagara Falls in a barrel — was a woman!

HARDLY Anna Taylor steps away off the Niagara and barrel she used to tumble over the treacherous waters of Niagara Falls, right

The first person with guts enough to go over Niagara Falls in a barrel was a woman — and she couldn't even swim!

She was Anna Edson Taylor, a 43-year-old widow who decided that conquering the falls would bring her fame and fortune.

On October 1901, she was ready to try her luck in a 180-pound oak barrel that stood 4½ feet high and was 3 feet across. Inside, it was equipped with cushions and a leather harness to hold her in place.

A 100-pound anvil was anchored to the bottom to keep it upright in the water.

News of the stunt brought thousands of spectators to the falls — and Anna didn't disappoint them.

She appeared for her public dressed in a long black full-skirted dress plus a wide-brimmed hat with a jaunty feather.

The daredevil widow told her helpers, "I'll just say goodbye, because I'm coming back."

She climbed into a shorter skirt then crawled into her barrel.

Set adrift in the swift, raging current, the barrel floated 7-foot-high Horseshoe Falls and disappeared from view.

It surfaced about a minute later and was pulled from the water. But it was so battered that its cap had to be screwed off before Anna could be freed. Her right ear incredibly, it wasn't until after [illegible] that Anna — a retired teacher from Michigan — admitted she'd never learned to swim! Her crazy stunt put her name on the front pages of many newspapers including The New York Times. But sadly her fame was fleeting — and it brought her no fortune at all!

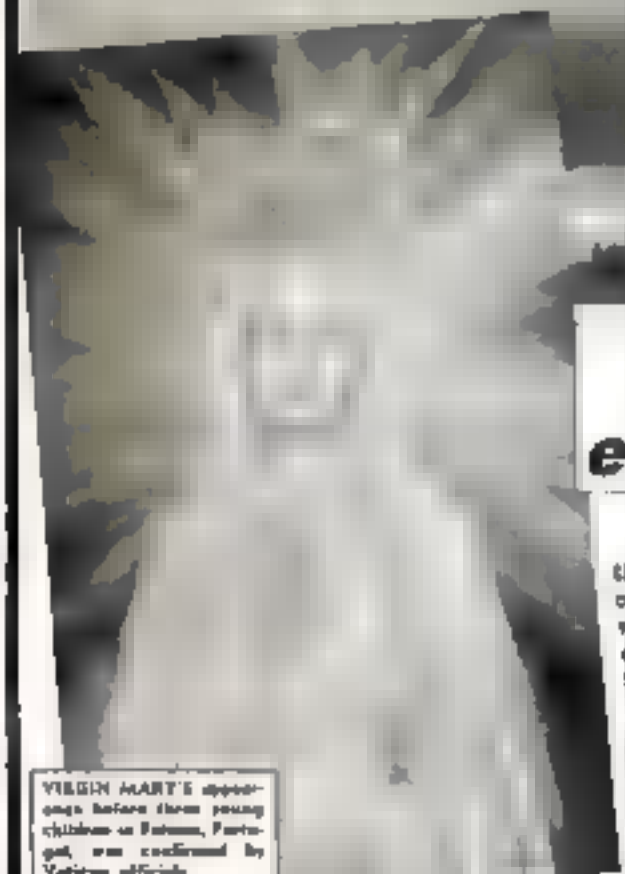
First two predictions made by the Virgin

3rd PROPHECY OF

The NEWS blows lid off



VIRGIN MARY'S appearances before three young children at Fatima, Portugal, was confirmed by Vatican officials.

Terrible war will wipe out every man, woman & child

By NICK MANN

An Italian journalist has blown the lid off the most closely guarded secret in the history of religion, the third prophecy of Fatima — which is the last and most important prediction that the Virgin Mary gave to three little Portuguese peasant children in 1917!

And far from describing an era of peace and happiness as some people had hoped, the prophecy foretells of monstrous plagues and war that will devastate the world and bring pain and death to virtually every man, woman and child on the planet in 1960.

"The prophecy speaks of unimaginable horrors and a punishment that will make the Great Flood look like a Sunday school picnic," said Mario Sebastiani, who claims to have obtained a copy of the prophecy from a high-placed Vatican source on May 3.

"It's not surprising that the Vatican did everything in its power to keep the prophecy secret," continued the Rome-based journalist. "The truth is almost sure to cause fear and panic throughout the world.

"But as a human being, journalist and true believer myself, I feel that the truth must be told."

The Vatican refused to comment on Sebastiani's report in spite of repeated attempts to get a confirmation, denial or statement of any kind.

A spokesman quickly conended that Satan "knows a lot of people" and might well have been able to get his hands on the prophecy, which has been under lock and key at the Vatican since 1941 — 24 years after the Virgin appeared to 10-year-old Lucia dos Santos and her cousins, Francisco, 8, and Jacinta Marto, 7, near Fatima, Portugal, in 1917.

The Vatican has officially recognized that the Virgin appeared to the children on several occasions before the year was out.

And there's no doubt that two of her three prophecies have already come true.

In the first prediction the Virgin said that World War I would end soon. She also predicted the end of World War I and the beginning of World War II.

But her third prediction was so horrifying that Lucia kept it to herself until the Vatican finally ordered her to put it on paper and swear her to secrecy in 1943.

Complete text of divine warning:

Here is the complete text of the third prophecy of Fatima:

"A great plague will befall [illegible] and on [illegible] Sunday in the world will there be in order that Satan will rule the highest places dominating the seat of change.

"Satan will even succeed in seating himself at the top of the Church.

"He will succeed in seducing the minds of the great scientists who control arms with wisdom it will be possible to destroy a very great part of humanity in a few minutes.

"Satan will have in his power the powerful who command the people and who will incite them to [illegible] monstrous quantities of arms.

"And will plunge man more thoroughly than with the Flood. There will come the time of all times and the end of all ends. The great and powerful will perish to clothes with the small and weak.

"Even for the Church, it will be the time of its greatest trial. Cardinals will oppose cardinals, bishops will oppose bishops.

"Satan will walk in their midst, and in Rome there will be changes. The church will be shattered, and the world will be shaking with terror.

"A hate war will erupt. Fire falls will rain from the sky.

"The waters of the ocean will become tidal, and the plant will rise in tremendous heights and progress will drown.

"Millions and millions of men will die from hour to hour. Those remains alive will envy the dead.

"Everywhere war [illegible] there will be anguish and misery, ruins in every country.

"The time draws nearer, the abyss widens without hope. The good will perish with the bad, the pride of the church with the faithful, the rulers with their people.

"There will be death everywhere because of the errors committed by the rulers and the followers of Satan, who will then and only then rule the world.

"At the last those who survive will at every chance newly praise God and His glory and they will serve Him as when the world [illegible]

Dear Dotti: I work in a small office, and one of my co-workers is driving me up a wall. She constantly picks her nose and I don't mean in private. You can be talking to this woman and she'll start picking.

Dotti, this bizarre display of nasal mining makes me physically ill. Please help me fast! — Disgusted in Sacramento

Dear Disgusted: The next time you order a pizza save a one-inch strand of cheese (better a little hotsprin cheese on it) and sneak it on one of the boss' letters when he's not looking. He's sure to complain and when he does say: "Oh, she must have done that. She's always picking her nose." He'll straighten the gal out or pass her the air. I personally guarantee it!

Confidential

Dear Inexperienced in Chat City: You've got it all wrong, kid — most women WANT to have arguments!

Dear Clandestine At Ia Playa: There's nothing wrong with belching at the dinner table — if you're a baboon!

Dear Curious in Seattle: I'll have you know that I've won dozens of beauty contests — including those in college!

Dear Students in Baton Rouge: Teachers would make decent waiters if they could read, write and spell. Unfortunately, most of them don't have what it takes to fill their own glasses!

Dear Wondering in Chicago: Making yourself for marriage? For goodness sakes, woman, you're 17 years old!

Dotti will answer your letters — and tell it like it is! Just write to her, c/o Weekly World News, 600 South East Coast Ave., Lantana, Fla. 33462. Include your birth date. The Countess' advice is free. Be real good anyway.

My boyfriend's simply too good to be true

Dear Dotti: I have my boyfriend dearly but lately I've noticed some strange things about him. For one thing, he makes me feel special. He always says the right thing and is full of compliments. He also knows just what I need at any given time.

But weirdest of all, he's more concerned with my sexual pleasure than with his own. I don't want to look a gift horse in the mouth, but it seems like my guy's getting strange. What do you think, Dotti? Should I dump the guy or enjoy what I've got? — Undecided in Evanston

Dear Undecided: I get a lot of love-torment letters but this one takes the cake! Most women would KILL for a kind, considerate man like yours — and don't you forget it!

How dare you insult your readers, Dotti?

Dear Dotti: I don't believe you! In a recent column you said that Star Trek fans are "incredibly insane" because they watch reruns every day and travel all over the country going to Star Trek conventions. I'll have you know that I do both of those things and am an official Star Trek nut! Apologize to me! — Furious in Wilmington

Dear Furious: I stand by my original statement. Case closed!

Hank Luke is so stupid it ought to be banned

Dear Dotti: What do you think about television? I think it's horrifying and ought to be banned. — Sad in Newark

Dear Sad: I've said it before and I'll say it again. There's nothing wrong with television — it's the shows that stink every-thing up!

He won't make whoopee unless I do the limbo

Dear Dotti: You won't believe this but my husband insists that before we make love, I do that crazy limbo game where you bend over backwards and shuffle under a stick. Now I don't mind playing games like this every once in a while but time and time a week is going too far! — Limbo Linda in Blue Springs

Dear Arching: Tell the pinhead you'll do the limbo if he'll do the foxtrot with a cactus. If that doesn't turn him around, cut the foot off until he's willing to make love with no strings attached!

Dear Countess: I gave birth to a beautiful baby daughter a few weeks ago but now that I've got her home from the hospital I've got the horrible feeling that she's not really mine. Please don't think I'm crazy, Countess. Just tell me if my daughter and another baby were accidentally switched at the hospital. — Desperate Mom in New York

Dear Desperate Mom: Your daughter and another baby were indeed switched at the hospital but the problem is a cinch to correct. The woman who accidentally got your daughter also suspected a problem and has already contacted me. I've told her that she must have your own daughter back — healthy and happy — in a matter of days!

Crowded in New York: You're most welcome. Be-sides, the jackpot should be yours any day now!

Dear Countess: I'm planning to go to Las Vegas next month and would like to know if I'm going to win any money.

You don't have to give me exact figures. But I really would like to know if I'll come home a winner or a loser — because I've got a big trip coming up and want to get to work. Can you help? — Frankie in Houston

Dear Frankie: The solution to your problem is an inexpensive hand-held mirror. Each afternoon place it flat on a windowsill where it will catch the sun and reflect light into the ceiling of your home. This will accumulate any effort your neighbor's evil eye is having on you once and for all!

Chief Mummy

By BEATRICE DEXTER

Indonesian tribal chief Werapak Elosarek rules his clan with an iron fist — even though he's been stone cold dead for 250 years!

The ancient ruler's body was smoked like a ham immediately after he died, preserving him perfectly in all his magnificence. For that reason he's still able to occupy his wooden throne and keep watch over the doings of the Dani tribe in western New Guinea.

"Even though he can't move or speak, we know he is in charge," says tribesman Nuwege Imanyak. "That's why we treat him so good.

"We marry our prettiest virgins to him. We give him the best food every day. He's a very powerful chief and we don't want to make him mad."

THE EYES HAVE IT

What's in a glance? Quite a bit, says an expert — who reveals how to interpret certain looks and glances to read the minds of others.

You can tell at a glance what others are thinking!

"Our eyes tell a lot about us. They're a barometer of what's going on inside our heads," declared Maxine Fiel, a nationally renowned body-language expert.

Here are eight key looks used by both men and women — and the inner thoughts they reveal:

Preoccupied — This is a fixed stare that looks like it's set in the distance. It tells you the person isn't tuned in to what you're saying.

Peripheral — The subject's eyes squint, the brows knit and the lines between the eyes pull into a little frown. This look shows the person has a problem and indicates a slight confusion he's trying to sort out.

Happy — The eyes are shining, alert and slightly narrowed and surrounded by crinkled lines. When you see this look, you know the person's laugh is genuine and his happiness is for real.

Flirtatious — A [illegible] look, the eyes are wide open and focused on the other person. Then, when the glance has been returned, the eyes dart to the side — and finally, they move downward.

Loving — This is a deep, dreamy stare into another person's eyes that's totally unreserved and giving. The eyes are liquid, and there's little blinking.

Angry — The gaze is set, the look direct, cold and hard. The eyes are narrow and unrelenting, the brows level. It's a look of hostility that cuts right through you.

Suspicious — The eyebrows are arched and the eyes look slightly down over the bridge of the nose. A person with this look is telling you, "You'll have to prove it to me."

Surprised — The eyes are wide open and the eyebrows are arched high. This is an automatic reflex to something that was unexpected.

Bizarre illness jamming up his brain waves!

MAN CATCHES COMPUTER VIRUS!

HEX COMPUTER placed on a human virus by programmer John Stevens, above, after it became ill from an infected software program

By MICHAEL TODD
Special correspondent

John Stevens has a lot in common with his home computer: Both think logically, both like numbers and both are sick with a virus — the same virus!

Stevens, a computer programmer who works out of his home in a Philadelphia suburb, is convinced his lingering and debilitating illness is something he got from his sick computer. And the victim's doctor agrees.

"I've run every test I can think of to trace the origin of his illness," said Dr Mark Pordand. "He has a virus, but it's not like any virus I've ever seen."

Stevens, 32, said his computer began to show signs of a virus — a software program designed to set up and destroy other software data — about a week before he got sick.

"I was careless about borrowing software programs from other people, people I didn't know well," Stevens admits.

Dr Pordand — himself a computer buff — agrees that borrowing software programs from strangers is like having sex with someone you don't know well. When you sleep with someone, you sleep with everyone they've ever slept with. When you borrow someone's software programs you're connected to everyone who's ever used that program.

Dr Pordand concedes that Stevens' symptoms are identical to that of a software virus attack on a computer.

"Stevens has become forgetful. He's struggling to multiply two numbers. He feels he's losing his memory. He has less and less energy. He can't hold calm thoughts. Even an EEG (electroencephalogram) of his brain waves keeps changing. It's becoming both and more erratic.

"This virus could just eat him up until his mind is a blank and he's like a vegetable," the doctor said.

Although she stands only 5-foot-3, her hair stretches out to one inch shy of 10 feet — and it's still growing!

Wang, 28, says she stopped cutting her hair in 1978 when she moved to Shenyang, China.

She says she has to climb on a cabinet so her daughter can comb through the tangles, and once a week, she spends a good two hours washing her tresses.

Henpecked cops sue big-mouth chief

Red-faced cops in a Stuttgart, Germany, suburb have won a court order muzzling their loud-mouth chief so he can't yell at them in front of other people.

He also can't criticize them for little things, no matter who was around," said one patrolman. "He's a big jerk, but he's going to be a quiet one from now on."

THOUSANDS OF ILLNESSES RELIEVED!

But Dr. Hurdle is not content with just talking. To back up his remedies, he provides positive proof of their effectiveness - actual reports of results obtained from his secrets by men and women from all walks of life. For example, find out exactly what happened to people like:

- Clay M. who stopped losing his hair totally, because of an amazing anti-baldness program that will work for you, too pg. 145
- Ken O. who solved a painful blocked ear problem with a simple, inexpensive method that anyone can obtain without a prescription pg. 170

FAST RELIEF AFTER YEARS OF SUFFERING

You will see how in many cases, a simple natural medical "technique," with something you probably already have in your kitchen, has quickly ended years of suffering! How even cases that seemed "hopeless" have benefited from "nearly miraculous" relief!

For example, take the case of Alma D. She was plagued with a urinary problem that made her life miserable. Doctor Hurdle suggested a powerful remedy consisting of one more food product that you can find on any spice shelf. Three teaspoonfuls was all it took to solve Alma's problem. She is now living a perfectly happy life. pg. 103

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE CONQUERED! Bill C. suffered from a serious high blood pressure condition. Dr. Hurdle prescribed an easy-to-find liquid that Bill had to drink before dinner. Results: After 8 years, Bill is free from any high blood pressure problems, without any costly medications. pg. 30

HELPED FROM AN ATTACK OF EMPHYSEMA. Jim P. suffered from emphysema. The condition of his lungs made breathing difficult. He couldn't take more than a few steps without being out of breath. Sudden coughing fits and chronic fatigue were so bad that he would have to stop for frequent rests. He had taken medications with no results. Thanks to a simple "natural medicine" remedy from Dr. Hurdle, his symptoms subsided and he hardly had any trouble anymore! pg. 91

FEBRILE HEADACHES DISAPPEARED. Ida, an active woman involved in community work, suffered from various headaches. Nothing seemed to do her any good, and she discovered a simple "natural medicine" secret - sold for a few cents, without prescription - which was better than aspirin for the pain and gave her wonderful relief pg. 41

PATIQUE DISAPPEARED. Irene F. was becoming more and more fatigued. Dr. Hurdle told her his "natural medicine" secret - a remedy that she had in her kitchen cabinet in common spices - which cured her fatigue more quickly than revitalizing pills. And it worked! Irene recovered her vigor and energy, and felt rejuvenated! pg. 70

Of course, Dr. Hurdle specifies that it is always a good idea to consult your doctor in serious cases, clearly described in the book. Be cautious against trying to cure yourself. But in many cases, says Dr. Hurdle, you can attend to your own health needs conveniently, with exceptional results. Pains and illnesses of all types quickly come making your life miserable all because you know just what to do

A UNIQUE HOME HEALTH PROGRAM WITH "NEARLY MIRACULOUS" RESULTS FOR THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE!

Dr. Hurdle's book gives you all these remarkable old remedies along with the obvious benefit of many techniques of modern scientific medicine, all combined in a complete home health care program which has proven "nearly miraculous" in restoring full health and giving an overwhelming majority to thousands of Dr. Hurdle's patients!

What is your health problem? Gall bladder trouble? Constipation? Diarrhea? Perhaps you are troubled by a hernia or hemorrhoids or varicose veins?

HEROINES OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION

Gutsy gals who fought on the front lines!

Many [illegible] women bravely risked their lives on the battlefield during [illegible] American Revolution — and actually fought in face-to-face combat to help [illegible] our nation's independence!

Elizabeth "Betty" Zane

The incredible courage of 18-year-old Elizabeth "Betty" Zane helped save a besieged fort from defeat in 1782. Betty was at Fort Henry in Virginia at a time attacked by [illegible] under the direction of the British.

When gunpowder ran low and the only source of more was a fortified house 30 yards away, Betty volunteered to get it.

When [illegible] out of the fort, the [illegible] did not fire. [illegible] Betty got gunpowder into a tablecloth and tied it around her waist. On her way back, the Indians started shooting. Dodging bullets, Betty got back to the fort unharmed. And thanks to the gunpowder, the fort held out until help arrived.

Mary Ludwig Hays McCauley

A brave woman who continued the fight after seeing her husband fall in battle, Mary Ludwig Hays McCauley so impressed George Washington with her courage that he made her a commissioned officer.

With the [illegible] close to [illegible] Mary [illegible] the battlefield to the patriot soldiers.

For this exploit, she became known down through history as "Molly Pitcher." She also aided the wounded, and even hauled an injured soldier upon her shoulders to carry him away from danger.

Later, when her husband fell dead at her gun, 24-year-old Molly continued to fire while the British attacked.

Margaret Cochran Corbin

Margaret Cochran Corbin was at the side of her husband, an artillery private, at the bloody battle of Fort Washington in 1776 — when he was mortally wounded.

Remarkably, the brave 25-year-old Margaret continued to fire her husband's cannon at the British. She was later found beside her gun. She was nearly severed and part of her breast mangled by grapeshot.

"Captain Molly," as she was nicknamed, remained crippled the rest of her life. She was granted disability pay by Congress for her "distinguished bravery."

Her body now rests beneath a special monument at West Point.

Nancy Hart

One day a band of five Tories — supporters of the British crown — showed up at Nancy Hart's frontier Georgia home. They demanded to be fed and they shot Nancy's last turkey.

Keeping a cool head, Nancy — a 6-foot-tall, big-boned, cross-eyed woman, about 60 — cooked the meal while plying the band of ruffians with whiskey. When the men were groggy, she managed to grab one of their rifles. Nancy shot one of them dead, wounded another and held the rest at bay while her daughter rushed for help.

Her captain has been remembered in folklore ever since, a plaything and a grisly weapon.

Deborah Sampson

Disguised as a man, Deborah Sampson, 22, enlisted in the Fourth Massachusetts Regiment, fought in several battles — and was wounded.

Fighting under the name Robert Shurtleff, Deborah served for a year and a half. It wasn't until she was hospitalized with a fever that [illegible]

British bigwigs say they'll no longer use the number 666 on car license tags — because too many people associate the number with satan.

PIONEER PARENTS Christine and Dennis Actons show these photos of their missing children. Authorities are still searching for the Actons' two freckle- and cherry-faced girls Lucille, seven, and Linda

Forgetful parents: 'We lost 4 children — and never found them!'

Absent-minded parents Christine and Dennis Acton still don't have the family they long for — because every time they have a kid, they lose him!

Dingbats misplace kids like they were car keys

The Dallas, Tex., couple have misplaced four children in the last 11 years — a boy and three girls. Investigators told the disappointed parents that the kids are most likely playing somewhere. But the Dennis Actons find's small consolation.

"I don't know why this should happen to me," said Mrs. Acton, 34, who is now pregnant with their fifth child. "We love our kids. It just isn't fair."

The Actons revealed their bizarre story after child welfare workers threatened to take their present baby. The couple, who own and operate a small trucking firm, say they're doing everything they can to find their kids.

They say they were living in Arkansas in 1961 when their son Freddie was born. When the child was 4 years old they took him on a cross-country trip — and lost him.

I was driving, we stopped at a restaurant along the highway and Dennis was driving. I stopped at the bathroom door. He stopped at the bathroom door. He was supposed to get Freddie and bring him out. But he thought I had him and I thought he had him. We never found him.

The Actons were devastated, but they say not for long. A couple behind them in line had a problem getting their baby back and suggested that we take

HOW TO DEAL WITH THE DEATH OF YOUR PET

Grieving over the death of a pet is a perfectly natural thing to do, say two prominent behavior experts — who explain how to cope with your loss.

"Never underestimate the importance of the loss of a very romantic — particularly for children and people who live alone."

"The death of a pet can be [illegible] pet," said Dr Ivan G Fedelman [illegible]

Dr Fedelman, a psychiatrist who founded The Pets and Stress Treatment Center in Columbus, Ohio, said the loss of a beloved pet can create severe feelings of loss and depression.

"I consider this a very dignified reaction and treat it with dignity and respect," he said. "Because, to some, the loss of a pet is like the loss of a human being."

Dr Fedelman and Dr Boris M Levinson, a New York City psychologist, offered the following tips on coping with the death of a pet

● If the pet belongs to a child, respect the child's wish to have a burial ceremony. Such rituals are a final act of remembrance to the departure of a loved one

● When a child loses a pet, don't get another right away, reasoning the child to forget his or her grief. Sometimes that's the way — it'll take awhile for a friendship to develop between the child and the new pet.

● If you lose a pet, try to remember all the joy and companionship you shared with the animal

And while you are mourning the loss of your pet, learn to accept it

● Don't be too embarrassed to cry. Some may tell you it's only a dog or only a cat, but you must express your own feelings

● Don't torture yourself with accusations and guilt

● Don't try to replace your pet too soon. First decide whether or not you want to start a new experience with a new animal

Bit by a loan shark for 522%

If you think credit card interest costs you a bundle, consider this — a couple in Winter Park, Fla., borrowed $300 from a loan shark and paid over $1,800 in interest before the cops stepped in and made an arrest!

Investigators said the pair still owed over $350 when they intervened and collected the interest she was paying at a mind-blowing 522 percent.

Beatrice Smith, owner of a loan company, was charged with criminal usury, a spokesman for the Orange County Sheriff's Department said.

Witch's curse kills Seattle man

SEATTLE, Wash. — A young electronics whiz was found dead in his bathtub — killed by a witch's curse, according to his friends.

The death of Christopher Cass, 38, was attributed to natural causes, specifically a heart malfunction. But there are those who think otherwise.

"It appears he literally was [illegible] had happened to death about a deadly curse put on him by a witch in San Francisco," Police Major Jackson Boyd reportedly told.

Friends said the young bachelor had been a bundle of nerves since returning to Seattle [illegible] from a trip to San Francisco.

"He was convinced the witch had doomed him to die and there was nothing he could do to change it," said Maj. Beard. "But he didn't say why the witch put a curse on him."

Cass was considered a rising young talent in the electronics industry, but he had missed work and stayed in his apartment since returning from San Francisco, Maj. Beard said.

"He called relatives and friends in North and South Carolina and told them he was terrified of the curse. He even talked of suicide," Maj. Beard said.

Cops believe Cass fell ill in his apartment. Several crucifixes, crosses, candles and piles of leather suit were all around his apartment.

"These objects were supposed to be protections against demons and evil forces, but obviously they didn't work," Maj. Beard said.

Cass's friends were concerned when they didn't see him for several days and called police.

"He was sitting up in the tub with a frightening look in his eyes as though he had just seen the Devil," said Maj. Beard.

"His friends are convinced it was the witch's curse that killed him."

Myths & facts about lawsuits

Don't be fooled by the many myths about lawsuits!

Here are several of those myths ing to Harry Lipsig, a New York City trial lawyer for 50 years.

MYTH If you cause an accident through your carelessness and get sued, you're bound to lose a lawsuit.

FACT "That's not true," says Lipsig. "There's hardly a accident we see in our daily lives that we can't find fault in some of what it probably could've been done.

"For example, if you slip over an electric heater unit and burned or it starts a fire, and the heater doesn't have a device that shuts the current off the minute it's tipped over, you can collect.

MYTH You don't need to pay and hire a high-priced lawyer.

FACT "Even the poorest person can get the same top-flight lawyer as a millionaire," explained Lipsig.

That's because lawyers in accident cases usually take the case on a contingency fee — they get an average of one-third of the amount awarded in the lawsuit. If nothing is awarded, the lawyer gets nothing."

Walking toothpick weighs 37 pounds — and feels great!

By BEATRICE DEXTER

The world's skinniest human is pregnant!

The world's skinniest human weighs a mere 37 pounds — and she's expecting her first baby!

Iriaidee Santos Alves, 26, is four and a half months pregnant and morning sickness has whittled her weight down from her normal 85 pounds. But the mum-to-be says she feels great and is looking forward to the birth of her child in October.

"I try to eat, but I just can't keep anything down," says brave Iriaidee, a severe anorexic.

"I worry about my unborn baby, but the doctors say so far it seems to be coming along just fine."

Iriaidee was dubbed the Human Toothpick when she was first discovered in 1978 living in a small Brazilian village.

She weighed just 58 pounds then and although her weight increased shortly after her marriage in October 1988, it plummeted again to 37 pounds in the first months of her pregnancy.

Her survival in such a skin-and-bones state has baffled doctors, but they can find nothing physically wrong with her.

In fact, her obstetrician says the pregnancy is going well in spite of Iriaidee's severe morning sickness.

"I just didn't like to eat," says the busy brunette, who normally consumes just a daily cup of tea and a few oranges each week.

"Food makes me sick. Just the thought of it is enough to turn my stomach, but during my pregnancy I've been trying real hard to overcome that."

Since she discovered she is expecting, Iriaidee has added vitamins and a slice of bread each day to her skimpy diet. But she usually throws up after eating, she says, and has steadily lost weight.

In spite of her super-skinny condition, the human scarecrow is doing her best to stay healthy.

Each morning she plays a game of tennis with her husband, wealthy sporting goods salesman Francisco Alves of Sao Paulo. In the afternoons she works out to Jane Fonda exercise tapes.

"I owe it to my baby to stay fit," the brave mum-to-be says. "I'm going to try to be a first-rate mother."

Doctors say the skinny-bones baby is due October 22 and should be a normal-weight in-

112-pound

ENDEARING HONEYMOON shots show Luke and Rita.

By REBECCA SPALDING

Rita McMasters really is the "little woman" in her husband — she's a 5-foot-2, 112-pound housewife and he's a giant 6-foot-11, 645-pound pro wrestler.

Her husband Luke is Britain's heaviest person and wrestles under the name "Giant Haystacks" — but despite their incredible difference in size they are amazingly happy.

"From the time I first set eyes on Luke in a dance hall in 1984, I just fell hopelessly in love with him," Rita said.

It was the warmth in his eyes and his gentle personality that did it. I didn't even notice his disadvantage."

But living with such a giant and then three stepping sons does pose some problems, Rita admitted.

Normal beds just aren't built to withstand [illegible] so Luke's platform.

It's surprising I don't keep [illegible] and wobbling [illegible]," Rita confided.

When Luke got in bed next to me his side used to dip down [illegible] and I was tipped up and [illegible] to his side.

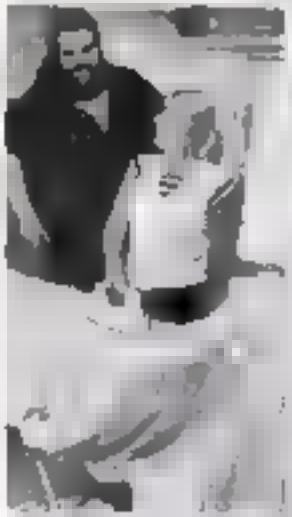
having to stoop and inch sideways," said Rita, "and some of the furniture has been reinforced."

Although her three sons — Martin, Stephen and Noel — are nowhere near as big as their dad, "grocery shopping is like stocking up for an army."



averaging Rita explained. "Together they eat a phenomenal amount."

On a typical day, the Mahoneys may wolf down 10 pounds of meat, 1½ pounds of bacon, a dozen eggs, 2 loaves of bread, 3 pounds of butter, 5 pounds of potatoes, 4 pounds of vegetables, 1 pound of sugar, 8 pints of milk and more.

"The boys will polish off a pound of steak apiece, but Luke eats as much as all of them put together," said Rita.

And while Luke might be a big, tough giant on the outside, underneath he's a gentle lover to his wife and his darling wife.

"Luke is the most powerful person I know," said Rita. "He adores the countryside and nature.

"He gets wildflowers for me and he knows completely in love with wildlife."

And when he hugs a man, the gentle giant is "like a big baby."

"He needs lots of love and cuddling," said Rita.

"People believe that Luke and I encounter all sorts of domestic problems.

"But we don't care — and we never have in all our years of marriage, we've had only a half dozen arguments."

Added Rita: "And we love one another more than ever before."

If your birthday is this week . . .

This year should bring you exciting new prospects for financial security and happiness.

The domestic scene should become more peaceful as differences are forgotten. You could even move out of a drab spot and into a wonderful situation.

Stick to your budget, and think carefully about taking on any long-range debts. It looks as if something's in the works to give you the independence you've been longing for.

AQUARIUS
Jan. 20-Feb. 18

She'll die if she cuts her hair!

ANDREA HODZA will bleed to death if she cuts her hair

PRISTINA, Yugoslavia — Housewife Andrea Hodza cannot cut her hair — because doctors have warned her she will bleed to death if she does!

The mother of three has made medical history with the super-rare hair condition and has been the subject of more than a dozen articles in medical journals. Mrs. Hodza, 48, is perfectly normal physically except that her hair shafts have nerve tissue and millions of tiny capillaries containing blood. When her hair is cut, it bleeds profusely and causes excruciating pain.

"The hair is connected to the scalp in a totally different manner than it is with normal people," wrote Dr. Vladimir Kardelj, a skin specialist who studied Mrs. Hodza for an article published in the scientific journal Dermatology Annals.

"Unlike normal hair, which is made up of dead cells, Mrs. Hodza's hair contains living cells that are nourished with their own circulatory system.

"It is actually living flesh and it reacts like living flesh. Injury to it causes bleeding and pain."

The dark-haired woman told Dr. Kardelj that her condition was first discovered when she was two years old. Her mother decided to give her bangs and cut several locks of hair — then discovered that blood was pouring from the shorn ends!

"My mother rushed me to a doctor and they were able to stop the bleeding by pressing my hair ends," Mrs. Hodza said. "But I still remember the pain. It was agony when they pressed my hair and my head was tender for several months afterwards.

"The doctors said then that if I ever got my hair cut I would bleed to death. They said I was fortunate to have survived my mother's stopping."

Dr. Kardelj and other experts who have studied the woman report that she has healing in her hair all along the hair shafts, which now measure up to 6 feet long. She found the extremely rare fact by pressing or crushing it so she doesn't break a hair.

"The experiments seem to indicate that she could have hairs as long as 12 feet before they would break," Dr. Kardelj reports.

"It's very heavy and cumbersome. But she has absolutely no choice about whether to wear it long.

"Having this condition is no doubt a difficult thing for her," said Dr. Kardelj.

"But it's a fascinating case from a medical point of view."

Bad taste is good news for business

Business tycoon Gerald Ratner is willing to share the key to his success: tell "total crap."

The chairman of Britain's largest retail jeweler, Ratner says you can make millions by forgetting quality and concentrating on sales.

"People say, 'How can you sell this for such a low price?' I say, 'Because it is total crap.'" Ratner told a trade group. He gave as an example an imitation book with "gaseous antiques sherry" that was "in the exact opposite taste."

Ratner says he has sold 250,000 of them, making a handsome profit.

You can tell if there is a space alien in your family tree, say psychic experts — who give tips on how to spot one.

"Many Americans have space alien ancestors, but they don't even realize it," said Brad Steiger, who with his wife Francie has studied UFOs, space aliens and outer space phenomena for over 20 years.

Think back to details you know about your grandparents and great-grandparents, suggested the Steigers. If one of your ancestors fits most, if not all of the descriptions below, you probably have a space alien in your family past.

● Unusual diet: Ate strange foods, like peanuts or cottage cheese, at unusual times, such as in the middle of the night.

● Unexplained losses: For multiple short away for several months or longer without telling anybody where, and refused to talk about it afterward.

● Generosity: Gave money and time to charity, worked on neighborhood and school projects, etc., stayed almost poverty and was willing to work to improve life on Earth.

● Sensitivity: Had ESP, remarkable psychic powers or was able to foretell the future with uncanny accuracy.

● Ability to command others: Everyone came to him or her for advice.

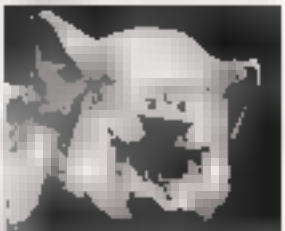
IN HOG HEAVEN

People are going hog wild for an animal that sports a tail, rolls around in the mud and is renowned for bad manners.



Hogs continue to be a popular theme for T-shirt designs and other merchandise.

Shops from across the country are offering everything from T-shirts designed with pink piggy faces to huge ceramic pigs that cost $895.

In New York City, a pig parade was held to promote a new line of designer shorts for men for $5.95 and pig earrings for $4.95.

MAN-tastic!

Finalist kicked out of 'beautiful legs' contest — because she's a HE!

By MICHAEL TODD

After winning seven straight preliminary contests in a Miss Beautiful Legs competition, Sharde Kleinghiel was barred from competing in the finals — because Sharde was a man in drag!

And incredibly, it was "common consensus" that Sharde should have won the contest, said Liz Clarke, one of the judges in the competition in Durban, South Africa.

"He looked really stunning — and if he hadn't told us he was a man, we would've been none the wiser," Clarke declared.

Sharde is really Johann Kleinghiel, an 18-year-old hairdresser's apprentice who says he "loves dressing up as a woman."

When he entered the Miss Beautiful Legs contest at a fair on September 14, he didn't hide the fact that he was a man from the judges — but the sponsors thought he was just one of the girls.

"At first I was absolutely terrified when I was called onstage, but when everyone started wolf-whistling and cheering, I realized they had no idea I was a man and my confidence was restored," Sharde recalled.

"I really tried it on think, showing off my legs to their best advantage. Some guys even started stamping their feet in appreciation.

"I won that first preliminary easily and made it through another six heats. But then the sponsors of the contest — a ladies' paper manufacturer — intervened and told the judges enough was enough and they must get rid of me.

"They said it wasn't fair to the girls to let me through to the finals."

After the sponsors barred Sharde from continuing in the contest for fear he'd win, first prize went to 19-year-old Maggie Caldwell.

Liz Clarke said: "We thought it was very unfair that they sacked Sharde out. Quite honestly, he has really beautiful legs."

And Liz Clarke recalled: "When Sharde won the first heat, the sponsors started to get a little nervous.

"They were in a tight spot — for a man to win, even if he did have fantastic legs, would

Gifted gal's fantastic fingertips can 'feel' the vibes flowing through your head

By LOU PACKER

Under Daniella Kadusa's fingertips, your scalp has no secrets!

This amazingly gifted psychic specializes in letting her fingers do the mind-reading, and she says the best-read heads belong to balding men!

"I get much stronger vibrations when I can touch the bare scalp," Daniella says. "If there's hair on the head, the brain waves do not come through as clearly.

"Other psychics read fortunes using tarot cards or auras or the palms of the hand. Hogwash! The fingertips and the scalp are the most sensitive areas of the body!"

Daniella has read a number of celebrity futures through out the world, from heads of state to heads of royal households, but she says she honors the privacy of her clients by not naming names.

"I may be able to tell all when it comes to someone's future, but then it's a secret between me and their scalp!"

Daniella says she was originally a seamstress in her native town of Pruduik, Poland.

One night she was giving a shampoo to her aging grandfather.

"As I washed his bald head I suddenly began to see all kinds of scenes and images that didn't belong to me," she recalls. "When I told them to Grandpa, he said they were scenes from his past. That's when I knew there was something special in my fingers."

Soon the glorious gossip was attracting clients from miles away, even from as far away as Warsaw.

Within a few years, she moved to the U.S. where she began a full-time career reading famous and not-so-famous palms from her home outside Milwaukee.

Daniella emphasizes that her power is psychic. She is not a physiologist — she reads people's vibrations, not the bumps on their heads.

Now, with a select clientele, Daniella keeps as busy as she wants. Since bald heads give the best vibrations, full-maned clients have sometimes gone to dramatic lengths to get a reading from the Milwaukee wonder.

"One woman wanted me to read her future so badly she shaved her head!"

Daniella says anyone can learn to read scalps with their fingers.

It's a matter of sensitivity and practice.

She offers these eight fingertip tips:

- Sandpaper your fingertips just firmly enough to develop sensitivity without breaking the skin.
- Practice first on your own knee — it's bald like a man's head.
- Practice on fruits and vegetables that are round, with textures, like cantaloupe and peaches.
- Practice on your own scalp.

If you've got no bald areas on your own head, have your barber or hairdresser shave a small bare spot on each side of your head.

- Practice on hairless animals, such as laboratory mice.
- Whenever a bald man appears on TV, put your fingertips on the screen and try to pick up his vibrations.
- Try this technique as well with photographs of bald men in newspapers and magazines.
- If you are at a movie and a bald man sits in front of you, take the opportunity to practice reading his future while the movie is playing.

Bargains, U.S.A!

By RICHIE GELB

Prices for great stuff hit ROCK BOTTOM

America's top economists confirm it: The recession will force businesses to slash prices this fall — resulting in bargains galore!

The costs of gasoline, cars, tires, food, clothes, jewelry, VCRs and televisions are usually expected to plummet.

You'll also find sensational bargains in furniture, appliances, houses and other items as firms beg for your business.

"If the recession continues, and there is every reason to believe it will, you'll be able to get just about anything you want dirt cheap," said one economist.

Another financial expert declared: "Smart shoppers will reap the biggest bargains. Some firms simply won't cut prices, either on principle or because they're too small to reduce their margins of profit.

"But if you have the time and inclination to shop around you'll find fabulous bargains on everything from automobiles and televisions to houses and toys."

Here are some of the best bargains you'll see this fall:

■ Housing. Prices will vary from state to state and market to market but savings of $10,000 to $25,000 on your average home will be the norm.

■ Cars and trucks. Expect heavy discounts and generous rebates.

Smart shoppers should be able to buy virtually any model for $100 to $200 above cost.

● Furniture, appliances and electronic gear. Discounts of 40 to 75 percent are expected.

● Clothes and jewelry. The
